Understanding the Ethics of Life

Rtn Purnima Sood

In the club meeting, Rtn Purnima Sood started her invocation with a song, “Ek Baata Do, Do Baate Char, Chhoti Chhoti Baato Me Baat Gaya Sansar.” In the earlier meeting she recited a song, “Aye malik tere bande hum, aise hon hamare karam, Neki par chalein, aur badi se talein, taaki hanste huye nikale dam.”

The crux of every religion as highlighted in the invocation by Rtn Purnima Sood, is that in today's world ethics often serve as a guiding principle that helps individuals and communities make morally sound decisions. Ethics are akin to a test that holds significance in various organizations, such as Rotary Clubs. The essence of ethics transcends cultural and religious boundaries, emphasizing the shared values of the human race. The concept of 'dharam', which translates to duty, plays a crucial role in understanding ethics. Across different scriptures like the Ramayana, Quran, and Bible, a common thread can be found: a guide to living life in a righteous manner.

The invocation delves into the meaning of 'dharam,' emphasizing that it is not merely about reading religious texts but about embodying their teachings in our daily lives. It suggests that 'dharam' is about living life correctly, adhering to principles that promote harmony and well-being. This interpretation of 'dharam' aligns with the ethical frameworks found in various cultures and religions, reinforcing the idea that ethics are universal. In essence, ethics serve as a roadmap for navigating life's complexities, guiding individuals towards a life of integrity and purpose.

Central to the invocation is the recognition of the five elements — Sun, Earth, sky, fire, and water — as fundamental to life. These elements are revered across cultures and religions, symbolizing the inter-connectedness of all living beings with nature. The acknowledgment of these elements as divine underscores their importance in sustaining life. Ethics, in this context, involve respecting and preserving these natural resources, recognizing their pivotal role in the continuity of life on Earth. This environmental consciousness is an integral part of ethical living, urging individuals to act as stewards of the planet.

Moreover, the invocation emphasizes the importance of understanding the significance of these elements. By recognizing their value, individuals can cultivate a sense of gratitude and responsibility towards the environment. This awareness fosters a holistic approach to ethics, where respect for nature is intertwined with human conduct. It reminds us that ethical living is not confined to interpersonal relationships but extends to our interaction with the natural world. Thus, ethics encompass both human and environmental dimensions, advocating for a balanced and sustainable way of life.

The invocation by Rtn Purnima presents a comprehensive view of ethics as a guiding principle that transcends religious and cultural boundaries. By highlighting the concept of 'dharam' and the reverence for natural elements, it underscores the importance of a life rooted in duty, respect, and sustainability. Ethics, as described by her in the invocation, are not merely abstract ideals but practical guidelines for leading a fulfilling and harmonious life. As members of the human race, embracing these ethical principles can lead to a more equitable and compassionate world.

Rtn Purnima explained that Paul Harris, the founder of Rotary International, envisioned an organization where professionals from diverse backgrounds could come together to exchange ideas and form meaningful friendships. He believed in the power of socialization and community service to create a positive impact on society. She concludes, “We may follow different religions, but teaching of every religion is doing our duty ethically, that is, ‘Neki per chalein aur badi se talein’. The World is divided on the basis of Cast, Colour, Culture, Language and Religion. On the contrary, in Rotary, coming from different casts, cultures, religions and languages, we become one as Rotarians to serve humanity.”

Rotarians world-wide follow the Four-Way test of the things we think, say or do:

Is it the truth?

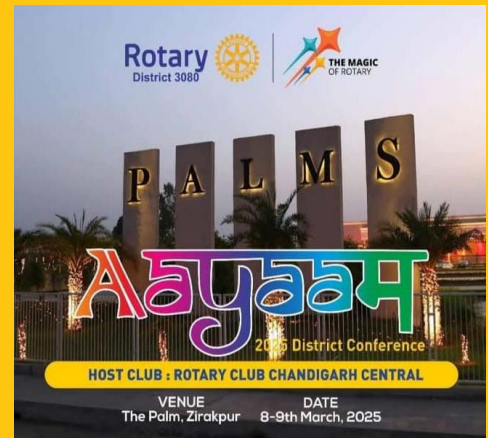

Is it fair to all concerned?

Will it build goodwill and better friendships?

Will it be beneficial to all concerned?
